Graduated in communication at PUCSP, today I am an interdisciplinary professional with knowledge in communication, hypermedia, design, programming, database and server.

I consider these skills to be complementary, and that my job (and challenge) is to think of ways to bring these areas together, and from there to build solutions for the web. My goal is to develop platforms that follow web standards while being dynamic, modern in design, easily accessible, and dialoguing with new technologies and new media.

I enjoy learning and also teaching what I already know, and I believe that teamwork and study are part of any development process.
